Class Participation & Attendance:

Class participation is an essential part of the philosophical process and classroom learning. Class participation includes taking part in class and group discussions as well as other in-class assignments. Out of class homework assignments may be included as part of the student's class participation grade.

Students are expected to attend every class. Regular class attendance is necessary in order to understand the material in this class. Students should plan to attend all classes and participate in discussions and class exercises. Absences begin to accumulate with the first scheduled class meeting. Tardiness or leaving early is not appreciated, and if happens often enough, it will affect your final grade.

Absences are only excused in the case of properly documented official absences, as defined by the College, and religious holidays. Instructor reserves the final determination on whether the absence is excused or not. Even if absence is excused, students still must complete all work missed and all work due.

If students miss a class, it is their responsibility to find out what work was missed. They should always get class notes from another student.

For any exams or quizzes given in class, there will be no make-ups (either prior to or after exam) for unexcused absences. Exams missed due to an excused absence must be made up prior to next scheduled class. If you know ahead of time that you will miss an exam for an excused absence, you must arrange to take the exam before scheduled date.

For take home exams, exams will not be accepted late or by email, except by explicit permission. They must be turned in when class starts on the due date. In cases of emergency, contact me immediately. If you know you will miss the class on which the exam is due, please make arrangements with me to hand in the exam prior to the due date.

Focus Papers:

Reading Focus Papers: one-page (no more, no less) discussion of what you took to be the most important point(s) of the reading(s) due. You should not discuss your opinions or any biographical or historical information. You should not summarize the article. Some questions to help guide you: "What was the central issue? What was argued? How did the argument(s) go?"

Class Focus Papers: one-page (no more, no less) discussion of what you learned or found to be most important in the previous class. You should also note any remaining questions or concerns. Only one paper per class period will be accepted.

Requirements:

- One typed page, no more, no less,
- If you, nonetheless, exceed one page, pages must be stapled.
- Standard fonts (Times New Roman, Verdana, etc.),
- Standard font size (12 pt.),
- double-spaced,
- Standard margins (1" or 1.25" all around).

No late papers will be accepted; if you miss a class, you miss the paper. Class Focus Papers are accepted only at the next class meeting. Reading Focus Papers are accepted on the first day of discussing that reading up through the last day of its discussion. Papers will only be accepted in class. Papers will not be accepted by email without prior permission.

Failure to comply with the above requirements will result in no or partial credit for the papers. If you find you don't have enough to fill one page, you have not read the readings thoroughly. Papers that are too short will not be accepted and will not receive credit.

Each paper that meets these conditions will receive full credit for the assignment (10 pts each). These assignments make up a significant portion of your final grade, so failure to do them will severely hurt your grade. You must do a total of 10 Reading Focus papers and 10 Class Focus Papers. If you complete both sets of 10, up to 5 extra focus papers, of either type, will be accepted for extra credit.

See the attached Sample Paper for a guide on how your papers should look.

Project:

Students must complete one of the following projects:

1. Pick a sports movie/book. Write a paper answer the following questions: What is a major ethical issue raised in the movie/book and how it is resolved in the work? How does this fit with any of the readings/discussions of the class. (note: this is not a book report/movie review: only describe plot/characters as necessary for discussing the ethical issue.)
2. Attend an athletic event. Write a paper explaining how it fits with any ethical issue we have discussed in class.

For both projects:

- Topic must be approved by instructor.
- Paper should be 3-5 pages, double-spaced with standard fonts and margins.
- Drafts will be reviewed upon request (but only once). Draft must be submitted no later than November 17, 2008.
- It is recommended that all students make use of the Writing Center:
<http://www.rockford.edu/academics/writingcenter.asp>
- Due the last week of class.

Exams:

There will three exams. Each will be a take home exam consisting of a mix of short answer and essay questions. The structure is open to change by the instructor based on class needs and the final composition of each exam will be explained in class when the exam is handed out.

Each of the exams will cover an instructor designated selection of material. Unless explicitly declared otherwise, students should expect any material covered in any reading, lecture, or discussion to be fair game for an exam question.

Academic Misconduct:

Students are expected to adhere, completely, to the Rockford College Academic Honor Code. Plagiarism and cheating of any kind will not be tolerated under any circumstances. Please see the Student Code section of the Student Handbook (available from the Rockford College website: <http://www.rockford.edu/handbook/studentcodes.htm>) for a full explanation of plagiarism and Academic Misconduct.

If you are unsure if a situation falls under academic dishonesty or not, consult the instructor prior to doing the work.

If you turn in a plagiarized paper, exam, or any other product of academic misconduct, this will result, at instructor's discretion, in a failing grade for the entire course, appropriate college authorities will be notified, and disciplinary procedures will be initiated.

Classroom Behavior:

It is expected that all students will behave in a polite, respectable manner at all times, and that they will always be tolerant and civil towards their fellow students and instructor. Any other behavior at any time will not be tolerated. The instructor reserves the right to remove a student if they fail to follow this policy.

Dropping/Withdrawal:

It is part of a student's academic responsibility to decide whether or not to drop or withdraw from a course once enrolled. If you find this course does not meet your needs or that you need to withdraw for some other reason, you must take the appropriate actions to drop or withdraw from the course. If you need to withdraw but are unable to come to campus, please contact me via telephone or email. Instructor will not drop any students for non-attendance.

Electronics:

All cell-phones, pagers, and other electronic devices must be turned off during class times. See the instructor if there is a reason that you need such a device on.

It is permissible to use a laptop to take notes, but any internet connections must be turned off. This privilege will be suspended if the laptop is used for a purpose unrelated to classroom activities.

You must get instructor approval for recording of classroom activities.

Electronic Communication:

All communication to the instructor must include the student's name and course title. It also must be written in standard English (no text speak!).

Statement of Accommodation:

If you believe you are eligible to receive any type of academic accommodation, through such federal laws as the ADA, please contact the Lang Center for Health, Wellness, and Counseling, 815 226-4083. The Lang staff manages disability services for Rockford College.

Course Schedule:

Attached to this syllabus is the schedule for this course. Keep in mind that the schedule is tentative and open to change at the instructor's discretion.

Student Chosen Topics: The last week of class is reserved for topics suggested by students. Suggestions must be received prior to the Fall Break. These can be submitted in writing or by email.

 - Philosophy majors consistently score well, second only to physics/math majors, with an average score of 157.4 on the test, 5.2 points higher than the overall (weighted) mean.
- GMAT (Graduate Management Admission Test) is required for most graduate business programs, including MBAs.
 - Philosophy majors scored the fourth highest overall on the GMAT with a mean score of 580, trailing only the majors from physics, mathematics, and engineering.
- GRE (Graduate Record Exam) is required for many graduate programs.
 - According to the Educational Testing Service (ETS), philosophy majors rank first on the Verbal Reasoning and the Analytical Writing sections of the exam.

Careers and Professions:

- Law
- Business/Management: from entrepreneurs and executives to marketing and public relations
- Government Service
- Clergy
- Publishing and Writing
- Medicine
- Journalism

A Few Notable Philosophy Majors:

- Stephen Breyer and David Souter, Supreme Court Justices,
- Phil Jackson, NBA coach,
- Steve Martin, actor, author and comedian,

Reading Paper for [Title_of_Assigned_Reading] or Class Paper for [Date_of_Class]

This is the text body for the sample focus paper. Your paper should look very much like this sample. You should follow a very simple structure. The first paragraph should introduce what you are focusing on. The middle paragraphs should develop this idea. The last paragraph should tie it together and conclude.

Remember, in your paper there shouldn't be any historical or biographical material unless it is relevant for the focus of your paper. Also, I am not looking for your personal review of the readings or class. Avoid puffery and superficial comments. You don't have a lot of space and so you need to focus, focus, and focus. What you should be doing is finding one point that you think is most important in either the reading or the class and tell me about that point.

You must make sure to proof-read your papers. Grammar and proper spelling are not just for English classes. They exist to help you make your points more clearly and avoid confusion. You shouldn't need to include quotes or do external research, I want to hear what you think is important and in your own words. But, in cases where you do provide a quote or make use of someone else's ideas, you must provide appropriate citation. Failure to do so is academic misconduct and you will be punished appropriately.
